

SERVICE FELLOWS PROGRAM Fall 2017-Spring 2018

Looking to get some teaching experience? Want to engage with the Madison community? Come be a part of the first Service Fellows cohort!

WISCIENCE is launching a new professional development opportunity for graduate students and postdocs interested in incorporating service and community engagement into their work as scientists and educators.

In Fall 2017, meet weekly with your cohort to learn:

- best practices in community-based learning
- how to work with first-year students
- techniques for facilitating discussion
- how to build community relationships and develop instructional materials that address the intersection of science and society.

In Spring 2018, put your skills to work by teaching in the first-year seminar, Exploring Service in Science.

Preference given to those whose field of study is connected to the sciences and who have teaching or TA experience.

Interested? Contact Jessica TeSlaa, jessica.teslaa@wisc.edu by Monday, August 21.

Learn • Teach • Share

Wisconsin Institute of Science Education and Community Engagement